

AN APRIL DINNER

BY CORNELIA C. BEDFORD.

With these early spring days we feel the necessity for a lightening of the heavier winter fare, and craving for greens and acids. If we live out of town we can find the early dandelion, the sweet mild cowslip, poke shoots and brook cress to add to the usual dishes. In the city markets are crisp radishes, small but firm tomatoes, lettuce blanched to a golden hue and cucumbers—all from hothouses or those warmer latitudes where frost has the briefest of reigns. Let neither country "weeds" or southern greens are attainable we will follow the middle course and choose, for our dinner for six, such foods as can be readily procured in a majority of markets.

Spinach soup.
Creamed fish à la Manhattan.
Steamed chicken, egg sauce.

Rice tomatoes baked in shells.
Lettuce or dandelion salad.
Wafers. Mixed cheese.
Cake with whipped cream. Coffee.
In purchasing let the marketing list read as follows: Two quarts of spinach, one pound of cooked fish, one good sized fowl (or two of medium size), one can of tomatoes, one cupful and a quarter of rice, one large firm head of lettuce or one quart of young, very tender dandelion leaves, one Philadelphia cream cheese, a little grated sage cheese, one cupful and a half of rich cream, nearly two quarts of milk, one onion, four potatoes, two eggs, a loaf of stale bread, materials for a French dressing, seasonings, flavorings, six penny sponge cakes and coffee.
In preparing the soup pick over the spinach, discarding roots and wilted or yellowed leaves. Wash thoroughly through five or six waters to rid it of all sand and grit. Put in a dry saucepan over the fire and stir constantly for fifteen minutes until wilted and cooked then drain, putting carefully aside all the liquid which drains from it. Chop very fine, then run through a sieve. Mix with the water which was drained off, add one tablespoonful of chopped or grated onion and put over the fire in a double boiler. In a saucepan make a thin sauce with one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one quart of milk. Mix this gradually and smoothly with the hot spinach and season well. Stir often and when scalding hot it is ready to serve. If for a company meal it will be best to rub again through a sieve and reheat before serving.

Fish which has been left from a previous meal can be utilized for the second course providing there is fully a cupful and a half after picking over and flaking. If purchased specially any firm fleshed fish such as cod or white fish, or canned salmon may be used when no other kind is available; the raw fish should be steamed or simmered and a mild flavored fish such as cod would be improved by adding to the water in which it is cooked a slice of celery or parsley. For this dish and of onion, a spoonful of vinegar, a stalk of the sauce served with the chicken melt in a saucepan three tablespoonfuls of butter and stir into it three slightly heaping tablespoonfuls of flour. Cook slowly for a moment, then add gradually a pint of milk, stirring until the mixture is thick and smooth. From this sauce take three-quarters of a cupful, add to it the flaked fish, season highly with salt and pepper, add a drop of tabasco, a dash of celery salt, and stand covered over hot water. Have the four potatoes pared and boiled. Press them through a sieve or ricer, add seasoning, a little butter and hot milk and beat until light, then put in a pastry bag with a rose tube. Fill individual ramekin dishes with the fish and pipe the potatoes around the edge. Place in a quick oven until lightly browned, then serve. Clean the chicken as for roasting. Make a stuffing with a pint of stale bread crumbs, a high seasoning of salt and pepper, a half cupful of chopped almonds or walnut (these may be omitted when not liked), and a third of a cupful of melted butter. Sew and truss as usual. The length of time needed for steaming will vary according to the size and age of the chicken—about an hour and a half for a young one, twice as long for a mature fowl. Before serving remove strings or skewers and when parsley. Take the remainder of the sauce, thin it with a quarter of a cupful of hot milk, add salt, pepper, a little lemon juice and two chopped hard boiled eggs. Serve this as a sauce for the fowl.

Wash the rice through several waters until it runs off clear. Have ready a kettle containing four or five quarts of rapidly boiling salted water. Drop in the rice and keep at a galloping boil until on trying a few grains between thumb and finger they feel tender and through. This will take from twelve to twenty minutes according to the variety of rice used. Drain and let steam at the side of the fire for a few moments. Mold in a slightly buttered cup, turn out on a hot platter and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Some time during the day rub through a colander enough stale bread to make a heaping cupful. Spread on a flat pan and place in a very moderate oven until dry and slightly browned. From a can of tomatoes take the solid pieces. Cut small with a fork, drain and season with salt, pepper and a little onion juice and let stand for an hour or more. With the dry crumbs mix a third of a cupful of melted butter. Fill deep shells with the tomato, cover thickly with the crumbs and bake for twenty minutes.

When fresh dandelion greens can be had take the youngest and tenderest leaves for the salad. After thorough cleansing let them stand in very cold water for half an hour, then drain and dry on a cloth. Make a French dressing with four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Dress the salad with this. Mash a Philadelphia cream cheese with a fork, adding a spoonful of sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Pour a tablespoonful or more of grated sage cheese, according to taste. Mold in small balls, arrange on a lettuce leaf and serve with wafers at the salad course.

Whip the cream to a solid froth. Reserve a part for the coffee; sweeten the remainder with a little sifted powdered sugar and add a few drops of vanilla. Pour a little sherry, fruit juice or syrup from preserves, in a saucer. Dip each sponge cake quickly in this and arrange on dessert plates. Heap over each portion of the whipped cream and garnish with bits of candied fruit.

Have the coffee ground as finely as possible and make it in a filter pot of some kind that it may be very clear. Serve strong and hot.
